Why I like God. He never meddles. He lets us do as we please. He permits us to make mistakes. This gives me confidence. This is why I have faith. By this I know that He knows we can make no final mistake. Only what is right and final. If we make a mistake, God never interferes to prevent the consequence. God never punishes, never regards, never forgives, or if He forgives, it makes no difference in the procession of events. He lets us do as we please and take the consequences. Whatsoever a man soweth, that also shall he reap. Everything is a cause of what is to be and a consequence of what has been. This is the main thing to learn. It is the law of compensation.—HUGH O. PENTACOST.

Doubtless "General" Coxey can find many coal miners in this region eligible to join his army of unemployed. The Telegram knows that there is much more idleness in the mining settlements in the region now than work. There is a reason.

The national administration will have opportunity to scour the congressional building basement for those old Cleveland signs, which read "keep off the grass," when Coxey lands his army of unemployed there, and the capitol police can wield their clubs as they did on the various occasions, "treason" in the public mind and prominent in history.

Even the president of the nation realizes that there is something wrong else hundreds of thousands of people would not be on the streets and now he is anxious to find out whether the reports are true about so much idleness and what causes the idleness. It is hoped that when he learns the cause, he will devote his power to correcting it, even if he has to reverse the Baltimore platform and have the tariff law repealed.

"General" Coxey is preparing to take a second army of unemployed to Washington. The start will be made April 16. Democrats have been talking overtime trying to convince the people that present conditions do not resemble the hard times, which caused Coxey's first march to Washington, but it is safe to make the assertion that General Coxey will find no trouble in recruiting his army up to the height of his ambition and the unemployed are numbered by hundreds of thousands and the soup house is not a myth.

Soon after President Wilson was inaugurated, it was announced that he would give but little attention to appointments, it being his intention to leave them largely to the various departments heads. It is announced that no one knows except the president whether Ned Smith will be appointed marshal for this court district. If that be true, the president's original intention has gone glimmering, and there is reason to believe that it went soon after he made it judging from his personal actions in several cases. There is strong inference that the present administration does a lot of talking not meant.

Guarding against Pneumonia. Observing that weather bureau experts say that the backbone of winter is far from being broken, the Uniontown News-Standard preaches a sensible sermon in which it cautions people to avoid pneumonia and gives the recipe therefor.

Unfortunately, in many households, a cold spell is the signal for the inauguration of the dangerous practice of keeping windows tightly closed and temperature as high as fires or steam heat can make it. It seems almost impossible to convince many that fresh, clean air is beneficial and even indispensable to good health. The very ailments that this class seeks to avoid outdoors, where the air is pure and fresh, are contracted in stuffy, overheated rooms.

Exposure to the cold does not cause pneumonia. This is a particular kind of germ that causes pneumonia, and this germ may be breathed in with impure air, or it may be lingering in the mouth, nose or throat of a person, unable to do any harm while he lives in pure air and his health and vital powers are up to the normal standard. Neither is pneumonia a disease peculiar to the winter time. It is prevalent in winter only because in that season of the year people breathe less pure air than they should. As a precaution against pneumonia it is imperative that every person by right-living keep his bodily health up to the normal standard, for a healthy body is nature's own protection against every form of disease, contagious or otherwise. And it is also the better part of wisdom to keep in the open air as much as possible and above all to see that living, working and sleeping chambers are properly ventilated.

Quality of Advertising. Daily News is the only permanent basis of success in any article. It is also one of the fundamental considerations in advertising an article; in fact, it is the basis of a law of preservation in business, as the business man that gives good quality through his advertising or go to smash. Of course, he may advertise and sell things not of the best quality, but the quality must be as represented, which is the same thing, the difference being only in degree. Says the News:

There is little money in selling an article. The profit comes when you sell some one some kind of thing over and over again. To get that kind of trade you must deliver the goods. A business man who paid down good money to advertise goods that he could not back up would be a fool. The wider he distributed them, the more trouble he would have. Not merely would the goods come back, but the people who bought them and were disappointed would tell all their neighbors. This would create bad will instead of good will. The public understands these facts perfectly. When a merchant talks publicly about his goods, the public looks at it as a guarantee of good quality. In fact, advertising standardizes quality. The public accepts statements made in a well advertised store at face value. It is under the bonds of publicity to make good.

Where the Real Hope Lies. A well-known congressman recently declared: "The woman who instills in her daughter the principles of gentleness and modesty, and trains her up in the way she should go, has done more for her day and generation than she can ever hope to do by active participation in politics."

As an exchange says, most assuredly objections to woman suffrage are in reality pretexts. There are doubtless great possibilities for good in the woman suffrage movement. But, it remains a fact that votes for women is not a panacea for political, social and industrial evils.

As pointed out before in these columns it is not the women in politics who is necessarily going to influence for the better. Laws do not stamp out vice. They may make certain forms of it less public but they do not eradicate it. Laws do not prevent the murderer from murdering, the thief from stealing, the drunkard from drinking. It is the general advancement of individual morality alone that can produce lasting results.

And that general advancement is largely in the hands of the mothers. If the young people of today are not the young people of a few years ago, if they dress and engage in pastimes and pursuits now that would have been deemed scandalous then; if because of this gradual change for the worse civilization is actually maintained, whose fault is it? Most assuredly the hope of the future lies in the bringing up of the young in paths of decency, modesty and purity. This is and should be the work of the mothers of the nation. The individual mother must rigidly direct the footsteps of the individual child. Politics and club fads must be secondary to helping form the characters of children in a rational and practical manner.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

Recreation. General Villa always keeps in good humor, provided he is not deprived of the executions that constitute his daily recreation.—Wheeling News.

He Would. No doubt Congressman Neely would have been just as well satisfied if the postoffice scraps had been deferred until after next November.—Wheeling Register.

O'Shaughnessy is Irish. The one-armed editor who threatened to shoot O'Shaughnessy would be in more danger of a good licking if he had both his arms.—Wheeling Telegraph.

Silent Now. A German engineer declares that the Panama canal is too shallow. The French engineers used to have critical ideas, too, but they are silent now.—Huntington Advertiser.

He Is. With get together movements in progress between the Republican and Bull Moose parties in many sections of the country, one T. Roosevelt, at present of South America, is coming in for a good deal of personal mention.—Grafton Sentinel.

The Trouble. The raising of the embargo on the importation of arms and ammunition into Mexico is defended on the ground that the undesirables among the Mexican population will thus be placed in a position to kill each other off the more rapidly. The trouble is that too many of the undesirables will always remain behind the guns instead of getting in front of them.—Morgantown Post-Chronicle.

Despatches from Mexico City just a year ago today averred that February 18 was a day to be remembered in Mexican history. It saw the sudden rise of General Victoriano Huerta from a long career as a military commander to the head of the government. Generals who had been defending President Madero from the fire of revolutionists under General Felix Diaz, gave way to intrigue, forced Madero's resignation, and made him prisoner. He was later shot to death. A congress in the streets of the capital just a year ago tonight elected Huerta provisional president.

Hasty Action Needed. If West Virginia is to be represented at the Panama-Pacific International exposition, which will be opened in San Francisco in February, 1915, some preparation should be making at once of any kind of a showing is contemplated. The last legislature made an appropriation of $75,000 for representation at the exposition, but as serious financial problems are confronting the state in the matter of prospective revenues, the governor has hesitated about making that sum effective through the appointment of a commission empowered to expend it.—Wheeling Intelligencer.

The Tolls Question. A great deal is made of the fact that Senator Chilton has changed face about on the Panama tolls issue, and that the Charleston Gazette, usually sensitive to the senator's varying impulses, took a shot at the president as a violator of the Democratic platform at the very moment when the senator was preparing to stand forth under the capitol. A series of motives are ascribed to the senator, who is accredited with the Gazette's attack. The "break" between Mr. Chilton and the White House has been chronicled even in Democratic newspapers.—Parkersburg Dispatch-News.

SAYINGS OF A NUT. The man who is able to eat eggs these days is apt to be called on by the income tax collectors.

If John Lind is as reticent in his home life as he is to newspaper reporters, one can sympathize with his wife.

Villa is not taking many soldiers with him for the attack on Mexico City. Probably he is figuring that Huerta will be seeing double.

A good way for a man to see a musical comedy with a big chorus and to indulge in half a dozen highballs and go to a vaudeville show.

The inventor of the alarm clock would be in danger of bodily injury were he around some morning when his invention disturbed the slumbers of one who had "made a night of it."

At the end of his first year in power Huerta's government is unrecognized by the United States. American, British, French and German warships are along his coasts watching conditions in his country. Revolutionists in the north under Generals Carranza and Villa have taken several of his strongholds, and now with success to arms from United States they are moving south upon Torreon with Mexico City as their ultimate objective. In the south the independent followers of General Zapata continue their uprisings. Huerta declares he has a loyal army of 150,000 men and reports continue that he may himself take the field against the enemies.

DR. HYDE DEAD

Venerable Southern Minister Succumbs to Paralysis at Home of Son-in-Law.

Funeral services for the Rev. Dr. J. P. Hyde, of Winchester, Va., will be held at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the home of his son-in-law, Charles M. Hart, on Locust street, conducted by the Rev. W. H. Foglesong, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church, South, and interment at the Odd Fellows' cemetery will be private.

The Rev. Dr. Hyde died at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening at the Hart residence, resulting from a stroke of paralysis Friday afternoon. Dr. Hyde was aged 78 years, and February 20, this year would have been the fiftieth anniversary of his marriage. He was born in Annapolis, Md., and was graduated from St. John's College at that place. He was chaplain of "Stonewall" Jackson's brigade of the Confederate army during the Civil war and captain general of the United Confederate Veterans. Dr. Hyde was also prominent in Masonic circles. He was a Southern Methodist minister but on the retired list at the time of his death.

Mrs. Hyde, four sons and one daughter survive. The sons are Harry W. of Winchester, Va.; W. M. and J. Newton, of Boston, Mass.; and T. of Seattle, Wash., and the daughter is Mrs. C. M. Hart of this city.

The Rev. Dr. Hyde was a typical southern gentleman, a cultured citizen, a polished speaker and a devout minister, whose activities in his denomination resulted in great good to humanity.

New Spring Fashions

As Exemplified by Our "Showing" in The Various Sections of Women's Apparel

The Watts-Lambers Co. is recognized as the style authority of Clarksburg.

Each season, and this season more so than any, has seen many odd creations, even startling in their originality, displayed by all the leading designers.

Milady of Fashion may depend upon the showing in this store containing nothing that is grotesque. Our Mr. Lambers in charge of these garment sections has succeeded in embodying all the new style features favored by fashion, but in garments which are decidedly modest and strictly wearable. This is especially the case in moderately priced garments.

Beautiful New Spring Suits at $10.98, $15.00, $16.50, $20.00, $22.50, $25, $30.00, $35.00.

Each new arrival in the Suit section is a charming addition to an already extensive display, for each brings with it some little touch which stamps it as a work of originality—of exclusiveness. The flare ruffle tunic or godet is fashioned just a little otherwise than heretofore—the bolero or eton effect is given just the merest change—the skirt is styled just a trifle differently and more smartly.

No matter what price you want to pay, you will find us well equipped to serve you best.

ONE MUST SEE THE NEW DRESSES, SKIRTS, WAISTS, COATS AND SUITS TO FULLY APPRECIATE THEIR WONDEROUS BEAUTY.
